Practitioner-based research studies – digested research summary

Please place your research into the appropriate sections.

Title: Please select a neutral title for your research piece. Your title should not include the name of an instrument or any commercially sensitive reference or trademarked name.

Practitioner: Your name/s here.

Measure: Name of measure/s used.

Participants: State if national/international sample.

Digested key message: Brief summary here of the main message/implications/findings.

Introduction: Literature/background.

Research objectives: Outline research objectives/aims.

Methodology: Detail method.

Analysis: Detail your analysis.

Discussion: Findings, key points, implications for practice.

References/sources: Websites, etc. can also be placed here.

Conflict of interest: Please indicate the source of funding for your research. Articles will only be accepted where you can demonstrate that no material conflict of interest exists.

Articles should not exceed 1500 words (including references and a maximum of two legible tables/figures).

Copy which exceeds the word count will automatically be returned to the author for revision and re-submission. The editors reserve the right to edit articles to maintain sufficient standards and authors will always be given final approval of their article.

Authors are required to sign a copyright declaration upon submission of their article. Copyright for all published articles remains with the British Psychological Society's Psychological Testing Centre.

Assignment of copyright agreement

By completing this form you agree to assign copyright to the BPS – however, as the original copyright holder you have retained rights (see below).

In consideration of the publication in:

of my article entitled:

I hereby assign to The British Psychological Society worldwide copyright in the work named above for the full legal term, including any renewals, in all forms of media, whether now known or later developed.

I warrant that the work is an original work that has not been published before, and does not infringe any existing copyright. (Please note: If your manuscript includes lengthy quotations, illustrations, etc., for which you do not own the copyright, it is your responsibility to obtain written permission from the copyright holder to use these and to pay any permission fees. Copies of such permissions should be emailed to P4PManager@bps.org.uk)

I warrant that in the case of co-authorship, I have the permission of all co-authors to assign copyright as above.

I further warrant that publication of the article or any part of it will not constitute a breach of confidentiality or trust, that the article contains no defamatory or otherwise illegal statements, or infringe any ethical obligations to individuals or organisations. I hereby indemnify the Society against any breach of any of these warranties.

I assert my moral right under the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 to be identified as the author of the article.

Retained rights

You can upload your 'Accepted Version' (also known as 'pre-publication version') to repositories without embargo (green open access). Please email permissions@bps.org.uk if you have any queries.

Accepted Version: Your submitted version accepted for publication

Re-use in other publications

You may re-use all or part of the Accepted Version of your manuscript in any other publication you have authored or edited so long as the re-used material constitutes less than half of the total material in that new publication, and provided that the original publication is acknowledged.

Personal websites

You may upload the Accepted Version of the manuscript on your personal website. Once the Society has published your article, the uploaded version must contain a notice as follows: 'This is a pre-publication version of the following article: [FULL CITATION]'

Repositories

You may place the Accepted Version of the manuscript in a subject matter archive, or in your institution/employer's repository or archive. After publication the uploaded version must contain a notice as follows: 'This is a pre-publication version of the following article: [FULL CITATION]'

Published Version: The final edited and typeset version

Copies for colleagues

You may send individual copies of the final Published Version of your article in any format to colleagues upon their specific request provided no fee is charged, and further provided that there is no systematic distribution of the contribution (e.g. posting on an electronic mailing list, website or automated delivery).

Teaching/training duties

You may use the final Published Version of your article for teaching or training duties by including it in course packs, e-reserves, presentations at professional conferences, in-house training, or distance learning. The contribution may not be used in seminars outside of normal teaching/training obligations (e.g. commercial seminars). Electronic posting of the final Published Version of your article in connection with teaching/training at your institution/place of employment is permitted subject to reasonable access controls being in place, such as requiring a user name and password, and access being limited to teachers/trainers and those being taught/trained. Posting the final Published Version on the open internet is not permitted.
