Qualifications in Test Use

The British Psychological Society (BPS) provides nationally recognised qualifications in test use for professionals who use psychometric or psychological tests as part of their role, for example:

Occupational professionals working in an HR department, employment agency or consultancy offering testing services, whose role involves testing for personnel selection, development or career guidance and advice.

Educational professionals working in a school or for a local authority, whose role involves testing children to understand their strengths and specific learning needs.

Professionals working in forensic contexts such as a prison, secure hospital, court or probation service, whose role involves assessing offenders' risk of reoffending.

By gaining a BPS qualification in test use you receive:

1. A nationally recognised qualification in test use, recognised by employers throughout the UK, and increasingly internationally

- Qualifications are available at the following levels:
 - Educational –
 - Assistant Test User: Educational Test Administration;
 - Test User: Educational, Ability/Attainment (CCET)
 - Forensic –
 - Assistant Test User: Forensic Contexts Test Administration;
 - Test User: Forensic Contexts
 - Occupational –
 - Assistant Test User: Occupational Test Administration;
 - Test User: Occupational, Ability; Test User: Occupational, Personality;
 - Specialist in Test Use: Occupational; EuroTest User
- A BPS qualification allows you to access certain psychological and psychometric tests that would otherwise be restricted
- Having a BPS qualification demonstrates to your current and future employers that you are trained to a nationally recognised, certificated standard, and have agreed to abide by the BPS Code of Good Practice in psychological testing
- Holders of a BPS Test User: Educational, Ability/Attainment qualification (CCET) may go on to do the Access Arrangement Course.

2. Membership of the BPS Register of Qualifications in Test Use (RQTU)

- This is an online register of those current and active test users who have gained a BPS qualification in test use. RQTU is searchable by employers and clients
- Membership allows you to demonstrate to current and future employers your competence in test use
- An annual entry on the register ensures validation of your test user qualification (Note: membership of the RQTU does not give you membership of the BPS).

3. Free online access to reviews of over 160 psychological / psychometric tests

- Our test reviews can help you to choose an appropriate test, suitable for your needs
- All reviews of tests are carried out by Chartered psychologists, who are experts in the field of testing and test use
- Examples of tests that have been reviewed include tests of motivation; personality; numerical, verbal and general ability; scholastic attainment; memory; cognitive styles
- All test reviews can be accessed for free on the PTC website.

4. Free e-Subscription to the BPS

- FREE electronic access to The Psychologist, the monthly publication of the British Psychological Society
- Eligibility to join the Divisions, Sections and Special Groups of the BPS – these are our knowledge centres, keeping our members up to date with the latest developments and research in psychology
- FREE access to the BPS membersbenefits package – a range of work and lifestyle benefits
- The opportunity to upgrade to Affiliate Membership of BPS for a discounted rate – In addition to the benefits listed above, BPS Affiliate Members also receive discounts on BPS workshops, conferences and events, plus extra exclusive online content.

5. Quarterly editions of Assessment & Development Matters (ADM) delivered to you and available online at the PTC website

- ADM is the BPS quarterly publication with articles related to educational, forensic and occupational testing.

6. Discounted rates on selected Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD) training courses

- Neuroscience for leaders and managers
- The psychology of influencing and negotiation
- An introduction to the psychology of management
- The psychology of coaching: Individuals and teams
- The psychology of organisational culture and climate.

How to gain a BPS qualification in test use

I have already completed a training course in test use, but do not have a BPS qualification in test use.

1. Contact your training provider and check whether completion of the training course and the assessment you have undertaken leads to eligibility for a BPS qualification in test use.
2. If it does, ask the training provider to submit an application on your behalf to the BPS for the relevant qualification.
3. Pay a fee to have your qualification registered and an annual fee for your entry on the BPS Register of Qualifications in Test Use (RQTU).
4. The BPS issues your certificate in the qualification you have gained and enters you on the RQTU and allows you access to the RQTU member benefits (detailed on page 2).
5. Each year, you affirm your continued competence in test use.

I have not been on a training course in test use.

1. Identify the level of training to which you wish to be trained (see pages 5-6 for a description of the competencies associated with each qualification).
2. Find a training course provider, by visiting the 'BPS Qualifications in Test Use' area of the PTC website www.psychtesting.org.uk.
3. Contact the training provider and arrange to undertake relevant training. Please check with the provider that the course and the assessment you wish to undertake will lead to a BPS qualification.
4. On successful assessment of your competence following completion of the relevant training course, your trainer/assessor will send an affirmation of your competence in the qualification to the BPS.
5. Pay a fee to have your qualification registered and an annual fee for your entry on the BPS Register of Qualifications in Test Use (RQTU) see pages 5-6 for details of fees.
6. The BPS issues you your certificate in the qualification you have gained, enters you onto the RQTU and allows you access to the RQTU member benefits.
7. Each year, you affirm your continued competence in test use.
